September, 2009 — Austin, Texas — Texas commercial general contracting company, Structura Inc., has promoted Aaron Mullins from Project Engineer to Project Manager. Mullins has worked as an assistant superintendent, field engineer and project engineer since earning his degree in Civil Engineering from Purdue University.

Mullins has experience in fast-track and technically challenging construction projects. Rusty Morgan, President of Structura, says that “Aaron’s proactive attitude inspires the entire project team, from the design team to the workers on site. Whether the challenge is value engineering, coordinating trades on a fast-track project, or upholding quality under adverse conditions, he collaborates with all parties to excel in productivity.”

Mullins has worked on local projects for clients including Capital Commercial Investments, Eanes ISD and HEB. He’s currently managing work on the Perry Brooks Building downtown and Brazos Place lofts.
